Abstract – A study tells that backpackers hostels is a place where one could have experience one could able to learn different thing with the living surrounding in this project various elements and of the backpackers hostel have being covered their anthropometry and a deep research over the spaces required in a hostel and a detail about the dimension of the places such as kitchen ,washroom ,dormitories .This study also consist of the basic requirement or we can say the terms and conditions which one should have to follow while having accommodation inside the hostels .This study also dells with various accepts of the backpackers hostels the primary research also dells with the space distribution and maximum coverage area of a particular area and a ratio of elements covered inside the region this study also deals with the huge difference which a person didn't knew about hostel and hotels .further, study provide a basic idea which one should follow while designing a backpackers hostel.

Key Words Accommodation, Coverage area, Anthropometry, space distribution.

1. INTRODUCTION

A hostel is a budget-oriented, shared-room ("dormitory") accommodation that accepts individual travelers (typically backpackers) or groups for short-term stays, and that provides common areas and communal facilities. To be considered a hostel, the property must provide short-term, shared (dormitory-style) accommodation for individual travelers, though many hostels also provide private rooms. The word "dormitory" refers to a room where travelers independently book individual beds in a shared room as opposed to booking entire rooms like in a hotel or guesthouse.

These funky and creative hostels are often independently run, providing a place to sleep for travelers and backpackers. Think of these more as hotels, except they're much cheaper and offer dormitory beds or basic rooms. They also try to foster a welcoming and communal atmosphere, so these are both budget-friendly and super fun places to stay.

1.1 IMPORTANCE OF BACKPACKERS HOSTEL

A hostel is the only place in the world whose primary task is to take care of you, your needs, wishes and satisfaction 24 hours a day. Every profession has its duties, its mission and what it strives for. The mission of a hostel is to make you feel good. Not good but great! Spaces created by imaginative architects, with superb materials, an original design, intoxicating scents, discrete ambient lighting, cheerful personnel, beauty and health treatments in attractively designed rooms, and enchanting gardens full of splendid flowers and beautifully shaped plants. Providing accommodation is never just about taking care of basic needs.

1.2 DIFFERENCE BETWEEN HOSTEL AND HOTEL

There are two main differences between hostels and hotels: the price, and the people.

Staying in a hostel will save you huge amounts of money, whether it's a six month backpacking trip through Southeast Asia with your mates, or a long weekend in any place of world.

But the main reason people stay in hostels isn't the price, it's the people.

The social atmosphere in hostels is totally unique, and it's what makes hostelling so addictive. It can transform your trip from a sightseeing tour into a more meaningful experience.

You'll meet new friends from all over the world. You'll cook together, drink together, and go on adventures together.

You'll get tips from the hostel staff, some of who might have exclusive local knowledge and others who are travelers just like us.

In terms of facilities, location and safety, hostels can easily give hotels a run for their money.

They've got rooftop pools, king-size beds, 24/7 security and en-suite bathrooms. below comparison is based on the bases of 3 star and 4 star hotel with backpackers hostel

5. CONCLUSIONS

It was found that ideals that backpackers hold during the trip in Country revolve around making experiences by traveling on a low-budget, making extended stays in places visited, pursuing independence and freedom in one's travel choices, experiencing hardship, meeting local people as well as other backpackers and engaging in the activities while traveling

These mostly reflect what has been until now seen in the backpacking studies and relate to the idea of building the experience that would importantly be different from the one of conventional tourists. It can be stressed that the ideal of engaging in activities while traveling is salient in the accounts of backpackers for whom only traveling is not enough to make a real experience. Thus, especially among more experienced backpackers there is a notion emerging as it is shown in this study that only extended stays and meeting local people is not enough in order to make a proper backpacking experience. A backpacker ideally also seeks to experience "life" in a country visited.

5.1 FUTURE WORK

The project work of backpackers hostel and their basic requirement does not end up here the future study can also deals with the experience of people who stayed in a hostel and also deals with the facilities and their furniture placements and types of furniture used in the backpackers hostel.
